Doctor Nordine is a health systems specialist who is also clinically credentialed in Neuromedicine and Preventive Medicine. He received the Doctor of Medicine degree from Northwestern University and the Doctor of Public Health degree in Preventive Medicine, Health Policy, and Management from the University of Michigan. He is also President of Pathways, a Health Technologies Company, established in 1989 to deliver better personal health management solutions to people where they live and work.

A business leader with extensive health professions experience, Doctor Nordine leads a diverse network of business and health professionals in project teams that create convenient, timesaving personal health solutions, delivered directly to individuals—anytime and anywhere—via multiple communications channels. Doctor Nordine's philosophy is to frame customized solutions by individual needs rather than by healthcare provider preferences.

During his career in medical practice, Doctor Nordine created the Resident Physicians Section of the American Medical Association, organized the Academy for Organizational and Occupational Psychiatry, and built an innovative interdisciplinary healthcare group.

His healthcare roles are now limited to diagnostic consultation and clinical team leadership so that he can concentrate on the development of knowledge management technologies to provide high-quality, personalized health solutions that are easily accessible to everyone.
